A NOTE FROM THE PASTOR

We continue to participate as a parish community in the liturgical season of Advent. Our Advent theme, “An Advent Home” is intended to sharpen our focus and invites us to contemplate the ordinary ways of holiness that are available to us. A little patience and even a few minutes of daily reflection each day will contribute to our personal spiritual growth and development. It is a wonderful spiritual practice and a good use of the time that we have been gifted with during this season of grace.

One of our parishioners pointed out to me that there is a wonderful opportunity for the members of our parish family who need to take the mandatory annual withdrawal from their retirement accounts. Any donation given at this time of year from that disbursement decreases the gross taxable amount, not the net amount. This makes the opportunity for giving this time of year a “win-win” for you and also for St. Gerard Parish. Of course, it is necessary to speak to your financial advisor to check and see if this is an opportunity that would be beneficial to you but the parishioner thought, and I obviously agreed with him, that I should bring it to your attention.

I cannot but help be struck by the growing diversity that is manifested in our St. Gerard Parish community. We are truly blessed to enjoy such diversity and the many talents and gifts that are available to us as a result of this diversity. There is a challenge in the diversity that needs our full attention. Some of the routines that we have grown accustomed to over the years are changing. We need to learn how to encourage and to embrace the new opportunities that are presented to us.

Learning to embrace something new means moving out of our comfort zones and trying to engage in life in a different way. Letting go of something is not a judgement that it is “not good” and it is not a judgement on the people who made it happen. Nothing could be farther from the truth. It is rather representative of the lived reality of the particular time and place in which it thrived. Moving on is an acknowledgement that there are new realities and new opportunities. It is also a sign of life and a very tangible sign of God’s grace at work. Holding on for dear life, on the other hand, is not only not necessarily helpful, it is often times even harmful. It blocks the movement of the Spirit of God and insists that the only reality that matters is my reality. That is not gospel living. It is the opposite of gospel life.

There is the rub. Spirit movement brings us face-to-face with the need for discernment. Discernment is recognizing the power of God and the power of grace and trying to enable the manifestation of how we are blessed and what we are called to live. Real discernment has nothing to do with power but has everything to do with compassion, gentleness, and understanding. It is a movement that brings us forward into the light but respects, not only the place where we are moving, but just as important it treasures and respects the place from where we have journeyed.

This reflection is a generalized reflection on growth and movement. It is not particular to any one activity or event in our parish life. I have nothing in particular in mind and I am not signaling that something/some event/some project will/should be isolated and discussed. It truly is just an attempt to try and clearly discern what it is that we are called to do as the People of God, the people of St. Gerard Parish. That being both said and acknowledged, it does nonetheless illustrate that we do have work to do and we do have decisions that need to be made. Thankfully, we have a vibrant and loving community that truly enables a discerning spirit and the action(s) that are/may be necessary.

Have a great week and continue to enjoy the journey of Advent. Together let us continue to be open to the Spirit of God at work in our lives and in our Advent Home(s).

Fr. Tom Santa, C.Ss.R.
